This is a decision-support artifact generated from a voice check-in between doctor visits. It is not a diagnosis.

Clinician Summary

The patient appears to be experiencing significant distress related to their academic performance. They express feeling bad and helpless, with a notable increase in emotional intensity when discussing the exams. This may indicate underlying anxiety or stress that could benefit from further exploration.

Message Shown to Patient

Hey, it's okay to feel down sometimes. Just wanted to let you know about my day. ■ Hope things are going well for you too! Let's catch up soon. If this keeps building, it could help to flag it with your doctor too.

Turn-by-Turn Detail

#	Time (s)	Distress	What was said	Note
0	0	6	My day didn't go well. I was feeling bad and helpless.	Patient expresses feeling bad and helpless with high pitch variability and pause ratio

1	0	7	I was not able to score well in my exams.	Increased pitch mean and energy suggest more intensity as patient talks about poor exam performance
