This is a decision-support artifact generated from a voice check-in between doctor visits. It is not a diagnosis.

Clinician Summary

The patient appears increasingly distressed throughout the conversation. Starting with a vague statement of a poor day, they progress to specific difficulties like sleeplessness and an inability to process emotions due to a missed deadline, which triggered insecurities. This pattern suggests ongoing stress that may benefit from exploration of coping strategies or emotional regulation techniques.

Message Shown to Patient

Hey there! It sounds like you had a tough day. Sometimes it helps to just talk about what's going on. ■ Hope you find some time today to do something you enjoy. ■ If this keeps building, it could help to flag it with your doctor too.

Turn-by-Turn Detail

#	Time (s)	Distress	What was said	Note
0	0	3	Hello, my day was not that good.	Initial statement of poor day with slight sadness
1	0	6	I was not able to sleep and I could not even process my emotions properly.	Inability to sleep and process emotions indicate ongoing distress

2	0	7	It simply happened because I was unable to complete a specific deadline and that triggered my insecurities and hence I was not able to process anything properly.	Specific trigger (unmet deadline) leading to insecurities and emotional turmoil
